STRONG NOMINATIONS.

One of the strongest proofs that there is widespread dissatisfaction with the present administration of city affairs was demonstrated by the large attendance at each of the republican ward caucuses last evening. The conservative taxpayers of the city, exasperated by the dishonesty and trickery of the "city hall gang," are united in a demand that it shall be deposed and forced out of the public offices. The canker of political rottenness is so prevalent in the public offices of the city that it threatens to eat into the stability of our system of local government. Jobs and jobberies have succeeded unblinking thefts from the treasury and the glaring irregularities and misfeits in other offices have brought the city into ridicule and contempt. It's a nasty crowd, which, like a flock of vultures has brooded over the public crib until it has befouled the atmosphere. It is time that these vultures were driven out. The men placed in nomination last night are all of high character and good standing in their respective wards. They represent the better class of citizenship. They also represent the kind of men who will be selected for the higher city offices. The aldermanic nominees deserve the support of the people. If elected they will be able to purify the city hall by ridding it of the noisome gang. The candidates for supervisors are all men of sterling integrity. Viewed as a whole the republican ward tickets are well chosen and will prove to be acceptable to both republicans and honest taxpayers of all parties.

SWEATERS IN PERIL.

That great abuses exist of which the working people, notably female wage-earners, are the victims, is apparent to the most superficial observer, yet it is not at all easy to devise a plan of general application which will be effective without interfering with legitimate business. It is the custom for wholesale clothiers to give out to contractors materials ready to be made up at piece prices. The contractor then distributes the work at a less contract price than he has bargained for with the wholesaler, this contractor or middleman "sweating" his profit out of the real toilers. It cannot be denied that this system is perfectly legitimate as a business method, but humanitarians and philanthropists find, with good reason, much cause for complaint. The "sweater" engages his employees wherever destitution, poverty or ignorance compels a person to work for the merest pittance. In the sea-board cities emigrants newly arrived, unacquainted with the customs and language of the country, ill-clothed and oft times hungry, are completely at his mercy. Each condition gives rise to great abuses. On the other hand a considerable portion of ready-made clothing is manufactured in rural districts where the wives and daughters of apparently well-to-do farmers accomplish the work for the very trifling during leisure hours, thus lowering the scale of wages for those who depend upon the work for sustenance and are compelled to compete with them. Members of the congressional committee on manufactures are now investigating the system as in vogue at present in the large cities of the east, and it is possible that the revelations made may suggest or lead to a proposed remedy within the limits of federal power.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS.

Wall street reflects to a large extent at present the European money market. There is a fear, however, that the immense amount of gold which has been, and is being exported to Europe, and being used in the process of liquidation there, will not come back very soon, which seems to be the cause of a conservative disposition, rendering the market for good security very slow. There seems to be no stagnation in general business, although the feeling of conservatism is very apparent in the dullness of prices. For example, the average earnings of sixty cities last week show a decrease of about 9 per cent compared with the same time last year. Out of New York the decrease was only about 2.6 per cent, from which it may be inferred that the reduced volume is confined principally to the speculative markets. Chicago increased 6.8 per cent. Within the week a number of prominent financiers have been interrogated and they offer various explanations, depending on location and general state of manufacturing interests. The condition of the money market and the business outlook in the United States at this time would undoubtedly be considered very satisfactory were it not for the continued liquidation and financial disturbances abroad. Our trade relations with foreign countries are now so close and sensitive that we feel any shock to credit, or disturbance to trade and business. The shock to credit last fall because of the embarrassment of certain bankers in London, was so keenly felt in this country that some of our manufacturers and merchants thought it wise to restrict their business and reduce their liabilities to a minimum. The people of this country at present are apparently waiting until the financial disturbances abroad are over. Fortunately, our crop prospects are excellent and the foreign shipments of grain and produce are very good, but the grain and flour prices are very low notwithstanding the last year's failure of foreign crops.

NATURALIZATION LAWS.

The judiciary committee of the house has reported a bill on naturalization reform and accompany it with a report setting forth among other things: "That the total immigration to the United States during the decade ending in 1890 from all countries was more than three times what it was in the decade ending in 1880, and that the bulk of the increase came from the non-English speaking countries of Europe." Further on it shows that this class of immigrants "is by no means so desirable or so easily assimilated as that of a half century ago." The marked prosperity of this country as evidenced by the constant inward swing of the gates of Castle Garden and the equally marked silence of the gates that swing outward to American laborers, is very gratifying to Americans, but a danger lurks in this, and the attention of all is called to another phase by the report, wherein it points out the "naturalization of aliens recently arrived from abroad, and who know nothing of our institutions and government, just before elections, with the view of making voters." In several of the states only the declaration of intention to become a citizen is required as an essential qualification of the alien to make him a voter. Under this system the alien may be a pauper, illiterate, ignorant and of a class which menaces all government, yet his vote, no matter under what circumstances procured has an equal weight with the vote of the American born. We are a great and a liberal nation, but in instances of this kind liberty savors of idiosyncrasy if not crime, and a gross injustice is done to American citizenship. The results of important issues may be made to hinge on the vote of an alien who is ignorant of any of the fundamental principles of our government. A partisan candidate may with a two-dollar bill, or perhaps a glass of beer, defeat the will of the people and work incalculable injury. "America for Americans" is our birthright and any system of naturalization which jeopardized in the least this principle should meet with a speedy readjustment.

"The North End News" is the name of a new paper published by Ed J. Clark and which is to be devoted to the expansion of the north end and to help build up new industries in that section of the city. Mr. Clark is an active and versatile newspaper genius, and his paper shows that he is industrious in getting the news and painstaking in preparing it for publication. With the north end, south end and west end cared for by bright weekly papers, the whole city will be assured wide notoriety.

As a campaign story the report that Senator Hill will return to the treasury the salary tendered him for services as a senator while he was governor of New York will be received with incredulity. If he declines to retain the money it must go into the "conscience fund," which act would imply that David had a conscience. The people are not prepared to receive such a startling surprise as such an intimation would impute.

It is understood that the name of James H. Kidd, editor of The Sentinel, will be presented as a district delegate in the Ionia county convention. He was mentioned for the same place four years ago, when he was favorably received. Mr. Kidd is an earnest republican and a thorough gentleman, and will, no doubt, stand an even chance with others who are looking for the honor.

GERRYHANDER has received a severe setback by the decision of the supreme court of Wisconsin, which declares the democratic appointment of the legislative districts null and void because it violates the provision of the constitution making the county the unit of representation in the legislature.

Let not your hearts be troubled in the doing of right in the coming election. "Do noble things, don't dream them all day long." But alas and alas, the dreaming is so easy and so pleasant, while the doing is so irksome and so hard.

Our highest motives in life should be to become judiciously wise and well-mannered. To conscientious and just in all things. We should use good judgment and honest tact in all we say and do.

"Dimes, not years, make life." Some people live more in one year than others in fifty. Question: What have I done in the time allotted me to make my existence worthy of life?

It is to be hoped that strong pressure will be brought to bear on congress to stop the free coinage lunacy, which amounts to no more nor less than inflation.

If you want a position, or if you want office help, you cannot do better than insert an advertisement in the want columns of THE GRAND RAPIDS HERALD.

Tomorrow the democrats will hold ward caucuses. It is believed that the city hall gang will win things to suit the bosses.

Blaine began the debate on the silver bill yesterday by advocating free coinage. Williams of Massachusetts, opposed it. It is probable that it will be several weeks before a vote is reached on the bill.

AMUSEMENTS.

A magnificent and select audience, which completely filled the theater, greeted Miss Marlowe, in "Twelfth Night." In considering her Viola three years ago, when Miss Marlowe was a new star in the dramatic, the writer gave the following prophecy in this column: "Like the first bud that appears under the influence of the spring shower, she seems to rest content until by the glow of the warm sun of experience, her genius shall blossom into a bright flower radiant with the perfume of art." Miss Marlowe has fulfilled the expectations of the most ardent of her early admirers. Her genius has matured and ripened. It is not the genius that thrills and electrifies, but a genius which soothes. How delightful is the unassuming simplicity of her Viola. A figure full of innocence which seems to move and speak purely from the inspiration of the soul within. No one for a moment sees in the duke's page, the suggestion of artifice or stage grace or trickery. It is the naturalness and the thoroughly unaffected manner which makes her Viola almost the ideal. There is at no time now in Miss Marlowe's presentation any lapse into self-consciousness. She has rounded out the character completely. Her reading is quiet, easy and free from effort or strain—yet her modesty in this regard commands applause and curdled calls. In a word Miss Marlowe is especially gifted for interpreting these lovely heroines of Shakespeare, and her Viola is equally as attractive and fascinating as her Rosalind or Parthenia. Mr. Hanford as the self-admired Malvolio was capital. He depicted the pride, conceit and vanity of the character with telling distinction and his "business" and by-play was well conceived and appropriate. Robert Taber was a strict ruler of the play. H. A. West, Sr., gave the familiar Sir Toby all of the bacchanalian spirit that was necessary, and his laughter with his cups was infectious indeed. Giles Shime was good as Sir Andrew. Other characters were entrusted in the care of players who contributed to what was a satisfactory and pleasing performance.

W. W. Tillotson, who wrote the dialogue for Evangeline and managed the scene, and who afterward approved of "Zitz-Zag" which was noted for its "pizzazz," arrived at the Morton last night. Mr. Tillotson is now controlling the tour of the comedy "Niobe," over which eastern theater goers have been laughing for the past year.

General Mention.

Rhea, it is said, has made the play of her life in "Caroline," with the bit of resistance of her repertoire this season. Everywhere this superb historical drama has been received with high encomiums of favor. Rhea will play "Caroline" at Powers' Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, and her new comedy, "Gossip," Saturday night. The sale of seats open this morning.

When it is considered that we are in the midst of Lent, it was indeed a fashionable audience which saw Marlowe last night. If they did stretch the strict rules of Lent, no one was any the worse for having spent an evening with Viola.

Joe Hawthorn, one of the best romantic actors in America, will play a three nights' engagement at Powers', beginning next Monday, and will appear in "St. Marc," "The Belle," and "Ruy Blas." Seats go on sale Friday morning.

A complete rehearsal of the opera "Pirates of Penzance," which is to be given soon for the benefit of the Grand Rapids Guard, will take place at the Ionia street armory this evening.

Fred Stinton is having a prosperous season in conducting the tour of Miss Marlowe. Mr. Stinton was the manager of Modjeska for several seasons.

"A Crazy Lot." This does not refer to the rules of the play, but to the play which will follow "Cruiskeen Lawn," at Redmond's next week.

The cake walk causes excitement and merriment among the patrons of Geary's this week.

Have you seen "Fatuma" down at Geary's this week? Everybody is mystified by it.

Not Niobe all tears, but "Niobe" all laughter we shall see at Powers' on March 31.

There will be the usual matinee at Smith's today.

Henry George as a Juror.

New York, March 22.—Henry George's independent spirit asserted itself in the superior court yesterday, and as a consequence he was excused from further duty as juror during the present term. He was the foreman of the jury when a case of damage was tried. The judge instructed the jury to bring in a verdict in favor of the defendant, according to law. The formal question of the jury was asked: "By order of the court you find for the defendant?" Mr. George arose and said, "No, I don't!" upon which Mr. George was excused. Before going, however, he handed the plaintiff the juror's fee which he had received for his services.

Gatch Bill Defeated.

Des Moines, March 22.—The house defeated the Gatch bill this morning, the vote being 52 to 46 for indefinitely postponing action on the measure. The vote was on strict party lines, every republican opposing the bill and every democrat putting himself on record in its favor. The result makes Iowa a dry state for two years longer. In the senate the world's fair appropriation bill was amended, reducing the total of the sum appropriated from $125,000 to $100,000. Final action on the measure was not taken.

Leased for Ninety-nine Years.

St. Paul, March 22.—At a meeting of the directors of the Chicago & Kansas City Railway company, held in St. Paul today, Mr. Stickney, chairman of the board, said the meeting of the directors was held for the purpose of considering the lease of the entire property for ninety-nine years to the Chicago & Great Western Railway company, a corporation of Illinois. The proposed lease was ratified.

Stanley Going to Africa.

London, March 22.—The London World says that Henry M. Stanley will go to the Congo this year in the interest of the Congo Free State and remain in Africa for a long period.

Some answers to two questions provided in a recent examination are as follows:

Question—What is a volcano?

Answer—A volcano is a mountain that sends out smoke and lava.

A volcano is a place on a mountain where a lot of hot steam comes out.

A volcano is a burning mountain which sends forth smoke and lava.

Borrowed Plumes.

Women Get Goods from Shops, Use Them and Return Them as Unsuitable.

It is a recognized fact that one can borrow or buy the use of almost anything. At a great cost it is understood that those who entertain may have hired most of the chairs, and there are caterers who make it their business to rent out entire dinner services.

It is a matter of harmless conjecture as to how many young men at a dancing party wear their dress suits by the grace of five dollars a night, or by the more knavish process of stealing the use of a second-hand one from a friend under promise to pay when "remittances come from home, don't you know." But there are times when social swells rebel against paying even a modest sum for an accommodation in the way of supplying what their menage lacks.

There is not a leading merchant in this city who could not tell some scandalous tales concerning people of wealth and social standing who have had goods sent home "on approval." There is absolutely no limit regarding the style and variety of the articles thus pressed into service.

Opera cloaks, fans, jewelry and head-wear are kept over night and then returned the next day, after having done duty at some social function within the twenty-four hours that they have been absent from the store, writes Dr. Vernon, in the San Francisco News-Letter. Since the greatest offenders in this respect are off the firms' best customers, the victims are forced to grin and bear the imposition as best they can, and so the polite knavery is passed over in silence.

But it has been reserved for some of San Francisco's rich people to play a trick upon trustful importers of bric-a-brac. When certain people enter the art rooms, look at cut glassware, and then order several of the handsomest specimens to be sent up to the house "this evening, be sure you send them up this evening, for my husband to see them by daylight," the clerks know full well that a big dinner is on the tapis. In this supposition they are sustained on the return of the goods by the unmistakable signs of dried soapuds in the deeper crevices of the rose cuttings.

Sometimes these "society" friends do have the grace to retain one piece and pay for it, as the price of the cut glass display which their assurance enabled them to make before their guests of the night preceding, but quite as likely the whole lot will be returned without compensation, and with regrets.

AUSTRALIA'S PEST.

Twenty Million Descendants from One Pair of Rabbits Within Five Years.

The plague of rabbits in Australia cannot be described without seeming exaggeration to those who have not had experience of it, says an article in Scribner. Originally introduced in a colony of about a score of individuals by a squatter near Melbourne, who thought their familiar presence on his station would "remind him of home," they have kept the recollection of England as fresh in the minds of pastoralists as to tempt them to very treacherous language concerning her whenever rabbits are mentioned.

The fecundity of the rabbit is amazing, and his invasion of remote districts swift and mysterious. Careful estimates show that under favorable conditions a pair of Australian rabbits will produce six litters a year averaging five individuals each. As the offspring themselves begin breeding at the age of six months it is shown that, at this rate, the original pair might be responsible in five years for a progeny of over 20,000,000. That the original score which were brought to the country have propagated after some such ratio no one can doubt who has seen the enormous herds that now devastate the land of certain districts. In all but the remote sections, however, the rabbits are now fairly under control: one rabbit with a pack of dogs supervises stations where 100 were employed ten years ago, and with ordinary vigilance the squatters have little to fear. Millions of the animals have been killed by fencing in the water holes and dams during a dry season, whereby they died of thirst and lay in enormous piles against the obstructions they had frantically and vainly striven to climb, and poisoned grain and fruit have killed myriads more. A fortune of $35,000, offered by the New South Wales government, still awaits the man who can invent some means of general destruction, and the knowledge of this fact has brought to the notice of the various colonial governments some very original devices.

The Rooster's Flap.

William Hamilton Gibson, who is a trained observer of plants and animals, satisfied himself some time ago that a rooster makes the flapping noise that accompanies his crowing by striking his wings together over his back. The popular notion is that the bird produces the noise by striking his wings against his hind feet. Mr. Gibson discussed the subject with a farmer once, and the latter laughed at the artist's idea and said: "I've been brought up among the chickens, and I guess I know how a rooster flaps his wings." "Very good," said Mr. Gibson, "but just watch your own fowls for a week, and tell me what you think then." The scornful farmer promised, and returned at the end of the week with the humble confession that Mr. Gibson was right.

THE GAME OF "LURE."

A Novel Entertainment for Railway Travelers.

A British traveler aspires to the invention of a new game which he encountered in one of the home railways. He was alone in a first-class carriage when two young gentlemen and three young women entered. He soon gained from their conversation that they intended to leave a parcel at a certain station. He thought that it would be civil to tell them that they had already passed it. He was thanked, and one of the gentlemen made a pencil mark on his cuff. Soon one of the young women asked the time, and none of the party having a watch they began to guess, when the single traveler kindly told them. Again a mark was made on the cuff. The party displayed such interest

Republican Congressional Convention.

A republican convention of the Fifth Congressional district of Michigan will be held in the circuit court room, at Grand Rapids, Michigan, on Tuesday, April 12, for choosing two delegates and two alternate delegates to the republican national convention, to be held at Minneapolis, Minn., and for the transaction of such other business as may properly be considered.

According to a note heretofore adopted, the several members of the district will be entitled to the same number of delegates to the republican state convention, viz: East, C. J. Smith, 11; Center, J. J. Adams, 11; Grand Rapids, 11; West, 11.

Republican County Convention.

A republican county convention to select delegates to the state republican convention, called to meet at Detroit April 12, will be held at the circuit court room in the city of Grand Rapids, Thursday, April 1, 1892, at 10 o'clock, for choosing two delegates and two alternate delegates to the republican national convention, to be held at Minneapolis, Minn., and for the transaction of such other business as may properly be considered.

rance of the route that several times, out of pure kindness, this gentleman would board timely information. At each time his courtesy was followed by a mark on a cuff. Presently they divided some money between them and left the train. Some time after that the traveler learned that he was the victim of a game called "Lure." The players take turns to start a conversation entirely among themselves, with a view of inducing a stranger to break into it unasked. If the lure succeeds, the starter scores one against each of the others, the latter, if he fails, scoring against him. The points, of course, can be any sum agreed upon. If the person "lured" gives a wrong answer the starter is paid double. All the players are bound to support the starter.

Extended the Time.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The United States senate has passed the bill extending for ten years the operation of the Chinese exclusion act.

Republican State Convention.

A state convention of the republicans of Michigan will be held at the Detroit rink, Detroit, on Thursday, April 12, for choosing delegates to the republican national convention, to be held at Minneapolis, Minn., and for the transaction of such other business as may properly be considered.

The call for the national convention contains the following: "The republican district delegates shall be chosen at conventions called by the congressional committee of each district in the same manner as the nominations for a representative in congress are made in said district; provided, that in any congressional district where there is no republican congressional committee, the republican state committee shall appoint from the residents of such district a committee for the purpose of calling a district convention to elect delegates to the national convention."

Under this clause of the call for the national convention the state central committee, composed of the following persons as the members of the congressional committee for that part of Wayne county embraced second, sixth and seventh districts, viz:

H. M. Buffell of Detroit.
H. W. J. Haines of Detroit.
H. H. Haines of Detroit.
